

HOME LIFE IN RUSSIA TOPIC OF DR. OXNAM

DISCUSSES MARRIAGE RELATIONSHIP IN FINAL VESPERS SERMON

HIGH DEGREE OF MORALITY

Communist Home Life Described by President of DePaul University Sunday

Enlightening those who have come to believe that present-day Russia has discarded occidental ideals of marriage and home life in favor of a mock marriage relationship which emphasizes licentious passion and lust, President G. Bromley Oxnam, speaking on "Russia" in his final vespers address in Gobin Memorial church Sunday night, stated that he believed that there was as high a degree of morality in Russia now as there is here.

The president delivered the statement in connection with his discussion of a problem on which he based a large part of his address—the new status of women and the home in Russia.

It is true, President Oxnam said, that for a time after social controls were broken down, there was an emphasis on sex. But new controls have been established. And though the divorce rate there is a little higher than ours, which is more than one divorce for every six marriages, there are many happy marriages there.

The new attitude toward marriage came as a part of the emancipation of women from a legal subject of husband or father to a free being who is expected to work so that she may be financially independent.

Marriage is entered into by mutual consent, and dissolved at the request of either or both parties concerned. Parents are directly responsible for children.

The communist idea is that women need not care for their children when trained nurses and educators who can care for them better are available. The same idea is carried out in the communal kitchens: Why should each woman cook for her little family when a few experts can cook for a whole group and do the job better and more economically?

The president pointed out that something of this same idea occurred in this country when bakeries, laundries, and schools were established to do work which women had always done though no one but they could do.

Another of the main points which President Oxnam developed was the absence of civil liberties in Russia. There is no free press there, no freedom of speech, no right of assembly, no habeas corpus, no academic freedom. The only exceptions to this lack of freedom are that there is less denial of habeas corpus now than that the powers of the state police have been curtailed, and that opposition to proposed policies may be voiced until the policies are adopted. After a measure is approved, only its application or enforcement, never the measure itself, may be questioned.

The communist answer to our argument for civil liberty is that we really have no free press, and though we are free, many of us are unemployed and poverty-stricken.

The speaker also described the pyramidal structure of the communist party and the soviet type of government, and touched on distribution of goods and state planning, the break-down of collectivized agriculture, and the creation by the communist regime of a new personality who thinks in terms of the group rather than of himself.

The president concluded with three warnings, or questionings of the communist system. First he noted that the underlying philosophy of the communist state—"the end justifies the means"—creates an attitude of mind which in the end may wreck the structure which is now building upon it. In the second place, there is danger in the concentration of power, in rigid dictatorship, in the abolition of civil liberties. And, in the third place, the system leads to a philosophy of materialism.

JURY FINDS SAM INSULL NOT GUILTY

FORMER UTILITY MAGNATE ACQUITTED OF FRAUD CHARGE IN FEDERAL COURT

"START OF VINDICATION"

Appears Years Younger Following Quick Return Of Not Guilty Verdict On Saturday

CHICAGO, Nov. 26, (UP)—Samuel Insull probably was one of the happiest men in America today, convinced that in effect he already is exonerated of state and federal charges of embezzlement and violation of bankruptcy laws pending against him.

The white haired little martinet of LaSalle street in better days exulted volubly at his acquittal Saturday with his son and 15 friends of swindling investors in his $150,000,000 Corporation Securities company, and predicted confidently that other charges will be dismissed.

"Another trial—if there is another one—will bring the same verdict," he chortled. "That verdict Saturday was the beginning of my complete vindication."

U. S. District Attorney Green refused comment on the possibility that a charge of violating federal bankruptcy laws by transferring assets of Corporation Securities company when it was insolvent may be dismissed. He plans to attend a crime conference in Washington in two weeks and probably will report to his superiors then.

Martin Insull, brother of Samuel, is scheduled to be tried Dec. 3 on embezzlement charges in a state court. Samuel faces the same charge. His son, Samuel, Jr., is accused of embezzlement in Lake county, Ind., of funds of the Northern Indiana Public Service company.

But all of the court battles still awaiting them made little difference to the Insulls today.

Last summer Samuel Insull came back from Turkey to a jail cell looking like an acutely ill man. He spent several days in the county jail hospital and fainted in court when arraigned. Today, romping through the 12 rooms of the family's $400 a month quarters with his grandson and a scottie pup, he looked a decade younger than his 75 years.

With a deal of hearty chuckles and rapid fire chatter he posed at length yesterday with his wife, his son, his grandson and Colin Glencannon, the scottie, for newspaper and newsreel photographers.

Sporting a white waistcoat, gardenia and pearl spats to offset his modish blue suit, he was the picture of a happy man. A snappy like wind had pinked his cheeks on a pre-breakfast constitutional, his snowy mustache and hair freshly barbered and his eyes snapped with energy.

He remonstrated gallantly when Mrs. Insull, a stage beauty of the nineties and still outstandingly attractive, exclaimed:

"My, I wish I could change my face for all this. She remarked to the photographers that "he always was nice like that, but you can't fool a camera."

Insull said he has no plans for the future and intends to think of nothing but the matter in hand until the charges remaining against him are disposed of. LaSalle street rumors have said variously that he intends to reenter the utility field in the United States or Greece, and that he will live henceforth in England, where his country house still is maintained.

EXTRADITION REFUSED

TURIN, Italy, Nov. 26, (UP)—France's request for the extradition of Dr. Ante Pavelic and Egon Kvaternik, suspected of complicity in the marseilles assassinations of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and French Foreign Minister Louis Barthour was refused today by the court of appeals.

The two were arrested here after secret police had sought them all over Europe.

W. E. Search, adult education supervisor for Putnam county, announced Monday that commercial classes are now being held in Greencastle on Wednesday and Friday from 7 to 10 o'clock in the evening and are open to everyone who does not intend to follow commercial work as a profession. Home management classes are being held in Greencastle on Monday afternoon from 1 to 3 o'clock, classes in electricity from 3:30 to 5 o'clock, and classes in auto mechanics from 7 to 9 p. m. Monday.

FARM INMATE IS HELD FOR USING KNIFE

GEORGE MAX OF CHICAGO ALLEGED TO HAVE STABBED WILLIAM D. TABER

CHARGED WITH INTENT TO KILL

Lodged in County Jail by Farm Authorities Following Completion of Sentence

George Max, 20 years old, of Chicago, a penal farm inmate who stabbed William D. Taber, Indiana state farm guard September 21, was lodged in the county jail Monday morning on a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill.

Max, who had just completed a term on the state farm imposed at Fort Wayne, was to be arraigned on the new charge in circuit court late Monday.

Max is alleged to have stabbed Taber with a paring knife in the state farm cannery factory, the wound narrowly missing Taber's heart. Before Max could inflict a second wound, other guards intervened. Taber, who is 52 years old, was a patient in the county hospital for some time before going to his home at Cloverdale where he fully recovered.

Max is said to be a "tough" boy who has served terms in other prisons despite his youth.

MAN, WIFE, TWO CHILDREN DIE IN MURDER AND SUICIDE

DEMOTOLIS, Ala., Nov. 26, (UP)—Authorities today interpreted the deaths of F. Clements Smith, bank cashier, his wife and their two small children as murder and suicide. The motive was unknown.

In her crib lay the body of Sabra Smith, two months old. She had been shot once in the head.

Webb Entertains Visiting Hunters

ANNUAL AFFAIR FOR INDIANA SUPREME COURT JUDGES AND OTHERS SATURDAY

On Saturday members of the Indiana Supreme Court and others who are intimate friends of O. G. Webb, spent the day at the Webb farm in the annual hunt which the supreme court judges enjoy each year.

Among those present for the day were Judge James P. Hughes, Judge Meyers, Judge Trainor, Judge Fessler, and Judge Rowe of the Indiana court, Richard Werneke, Terre Haute, Pleas Greenlee, Indianapolis, Judge Gerding, Terre Haute, Charles Whitlock, Homer Williams and George Eveloe, Vigo County chairman, of Terre Haute; Robert Hoffman, Chas. Werneke, Miss Helen Werneke, and Miss Frances Kerr.

Following the day's hunt, a bountiful dinner was spread. The table was loaded with all the good things to eat one could think of. It was headed by a twenty-pound turkey roasted to a queen's taste and to say the visitors enjoyed the repast, would be putting it quite mildly, because they ate until they could eat no more. Following the feast, they spent the remainder of the time singing and enjoying the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Webb.

UNCOVER PLOT TO WRECK INSURANCE CO., 3 BANKS

CHICAGO, Nov. 25, (UP)—State's attorneys planned today to ask for indictments against at least three of seven men accused of plotting to wreck the $15,000,000 Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company and three Indianapolis banks.

Assistant State's Attorney Vernon Thompson, who unearthed the purported conspiracy after a conscience-stricken bank clerk confessed that he had aided in passing $54,000 of bogus checks through the Amalgamated Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago, said he had not determined how many of the accused men will be named before the grand jury.

He indicated, however, that he will seek indictments for Joseph Bainta, ex-convict and confidence man named as the arch-conspirator of the plot; Gustav Lindquist, former Minnesota insurance commissioner and since October president of the Abraham Lincoln company, and Hayden Sanders, once assistant cashier of the Amalgamated bank and since treasurer of the insurance company.

SHOUSE FACES MURDER TRIAL AT LIMA, OHIO

FORMER DILLINGER GANGSTER TO BE TRIED FOR SLAYING OF OHIO SHERIFF

LIMA, O., Nov. 26 (UP)—Edward Shouse, 34, under first degree murder indictment, will be brought here from Indiana state penitentiary to be tried in connection with the slaying of Sheriff J. L. Sarber in a raid on the Allen county jail Oct. 12, 1933, officials said today.

Sheriff Donald Sarber, son of the slain officer, was to confer today with Prosecutor E. M. Botkin on plans for Shouse's transfer within the next few days.

John Dillinger, late public enemy, was freed from the Lima jail when Sheriff Sarber was killed.

Harry Copeland, another Dillinger gangster under first degree murder indictment here, also is a prisoner in the Indiana penitentiary but it is uncertain whether he will be brought here for trial.

The Lima jail will be guarded carefully during the trial of Shouse, who was an important state witness against Harry Pierpont and Russell Clark, convicted of the sheriff's death. Shouse testified he and two others stood guard outside while 3 companions went in the jail to release Dillinger. He identified Pierpont as the "trigger" man.

Pierpont was executed and Clark is serving a life sentence.

THREE GIRLS FOUND DEAD; UNIDENTIFIED

MYSTERY SURROUNDS FINDING OF BODIES WRAPPED IN BLANKET ON MOUNTAIN

AGES RANGE FROM 8-15 YEARS

Man And Woman Found Dead 100 Miles Away Also Baffle Pennsylvania Officers

CARLISLE, Pa., Nov. 26, (UP)—The coats found on the bodies of three young girls, found on a south mountain hillside, were traced today to the H. and J. Black Company, garment manufacturers, of 501 7th avenue, New York.

Lacking identification of the children, whose ages ranged from eight to 15, police and detectives attempted to trace, by the slender clues contained in their garments, the locality from which they were brought here. The search centered in the New York and New England areas.

Their coats bore the NRA eagle and on it the symbol ZWA, which is the mark of the Block company. Marks on underwear also were being traced.

CARLISLE, Pa., Nov. 26, (UP)—Authorities appealed to every resident in every city, town and hamlet in the United States today for aid in solving the seemingly impenetrable mystery obscuring the identity and last movements of three children found dead on a mountain side.

Three girls, the eldest about 15, the others between 8 and 12, were found dead under one blanket in the south mountains near here Saturday without a single clue to the cause or circumstance of death.

Later a man and a woman were found dead in an abandoned railroad station 100 miles away. Apparently one killed the other and committed suicide.

No positive connection between the two discoveries was evident; perhaps they represented culmination of two tragedies, perhaps one. No positive identification of either children or adults could be obtained.

A well traveled highway passes within 100 feet of the spot where the children were found, and a branch of the same highway passes the abandoned station at Spring Meadows, near Altoona. Bewildered authorities believed that the absence of missing children or adults in this vicinity indicated the principals came from afar.

The three children, of fair complexion and with golden hair and apparently sisters, and the two adults might have come from anywhere. No person reading this, be he in Maine or California, can state positively that he does not know the man or woman or that his children never played with these children.

Authorities could not even state positively how the children died. They were sure that they had not died of natural causes but they did not die from wounds of any sort. Every conceivable cause was eliminated until only asphyxiation either by an anesthetic or gas (perhaps from the monoxide gas given off by an automobile exhaust) or poison remained.

One thing was definitely established. Life had not been kind to the little girls. Autopsy revealed they had no food whatsoever during the 18 hours preceding death.

They lay on one blanket and were covered by another. Each was in an attitude of natural sleep, though the faces of two were mildly distorted. Their clothing while worn was neat and clean. Apparently they had had the best of care and from the arrangement of the bodies and the care with which they were covered, indicated tender, loving hands had placed them there.

Hundreds of persons filed through the morgue here, looked at the still forms and shook their heads. There was not a glimmer of recognition.

SLAIN WOMAN MEMBER OF INDIANAPOLIS AUXILIARY DRUM CORPS

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26—Forrest L. Monroe, 33, Indianapolis, shot and killed his estranged wife, Mrs. Zelma Monroe, 31, and then committed suicide in a north side apartment here Saturday night.

The couple had separated about two weeks ago, Mrs. Ray Bairdon, with whom Mrs. Monroe had been rooming, told police.

Monroe came to visit his wife, Mrs. Bairdon told officers, and following a private conversation, three shots were heard. Monroe died almost instantly and his wife succumbed at City hospital shortly afterwards.

Mrs. Monroe had been employed as a clerk by the Legion publishing corporation, publishers of the American Legion Monthly. She was a member of the Indianapolis Legion Auxiliary drum and bugle corps of which Mrs. Bairdon was captain last year.

Monroe was a barber but had worked only one day a week for a long period.

SCATTERED RAINS A BOON TO SPORTSMEN

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 26—Scattered rains over the state during the past few days have been greeted with enthusiasm by hunters who have been handicapped by dry weather. While quail and other game has been plentiful in most sections of the state, dogs have had difficulty in locating the birds due to the dry weather. Many hunters have reported coveys getting up the second time.

While the trapping season has been in progress but a few days, fur buyers in most sections report good prospects which will be improved by cold weather. Muskrats are scarce in some parts of the state but opossum and raccoons are plentiful in most sections. All persons are required to have a license to buy furs while residents of the state are permitted to trap on their own land without a license. They must have a license to trap off their own land.

CHAPTER X
On Trial for Love

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE
After Danilo's first surprise at discovering that Sonia is his wife of 10 years, he conquers her of his love. Then she discovers he has been commissioned by the king to marry her so that her uncle, the ruler of Marshovia, her heart is broken. She believed he loved her, as she does him. He does—but nothing he can say or do, now, can convince her. Once again she is forced to spurn this man who has won her heart completely.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Danilo left Sonia in despair and made for the dancing salon. Guests rushed to him from all sides, congratulating him, shaking his hand, uttering praises for the lady of his choice and high good wishes for himself. He stood there in stony silence, too deeply hurt to answer or correct them.

Sonia watched it all from a corner of the room. The tears coursed down her cheeks as her own name or Danilo's reached her above the babble of voices. Then she heard Danilo clearly:

"Ladies and gentlemen," he was saying, "I wish to correct a misunderstanding. The announcement of Madame's engagement has been made without Madame's knowledge or consent. I am speaking for Madame Sonia when I say that Madame has never entertained the slightest thought of such an engagement."

A murmur of surprise greeted his announcement. Sonia closed her eyes and held her hand to her heart. This, then, was the final break between them. Danilo came to her side. His manner held the quiet of despair; his voice was toneless with sorrow.

"Madame," he said, "I know it's all over. There is nothing left to be said. I shall make no attempt to explain. There's only one thing I want to say before I go—" His voice broke. "I loved you, Fifi!"

Sonia's eyes blazed with all the hostility of a deeply hurt woman.

"No, who do you expect me to do?" she asked. "Fall into your arms? Oh, Marshovia selected the right man. You are brilliant, Captain, too brilliant."

"Fifi," he said, to smile, she accented a group of men standing politely at attention. "Shall we dance gentlemen?" she asked with assumed gaiety.

The door opened and two Marshovian officers entered the room. Sonia, her head thrown back, her eyes bright with tears, her mouth set in a smile, saw them approach Danilo. She danced away with her partner before she heard what they said to him.

"Sorry, Captain. In the name of His Majesty, you are under arrest." Danilo saluted. He turned over his sword and insignia. With bowed head he marched out of the Embassy. Under escort, he rode to the station to entrain back to Marshovia.

"Extra! Extra!" The streets of Marshovia were filled with the cry. An old woman hawked the latest news:

"Trial opens today. Captain Danilo on trial! Widow withdraws money from country. Extra! Extra!"

Shepherds, peasants, cowboys, soldiers, beaties and musicians thronged the streets to hear the newest developments, to buy the recent editions, to read the latest news of the press.

In the royal Palace, King Achmed and Queen Dolores scanned the papers.

"It's terrible," the king said angrily. "This is the worst press we've ever had." He flung down his paper in disgust as he called down the corridor:

"Gabrilowitch! More clippings, please."

"What are we going to do?" he continued to Dolores. "If the widow doesn't change her mind, we can close up the kingdom."

"Darling," asked the Queen, "does only insurance against loss cover the throne, too?"

"Only the crown and scepter," he answered. His fine show of bravery left him. He bowed his head in his hands. "Oh, Dolores, Dolores!"

"Looks like exile to me," she observed sadly.

"What are we going to do?" he cried again. "Go on the vaudeville stage and sing?"

Three heavy cannon shots boomed through the Palace windows.

The King seized the Queen in fright. "Gabrilowitch!" he bawled. "What is it? Revolution?"

Gabrilowitch bounded into the room. "No, Your Majesty. The guns just announced the opening of the trial."

The King and Queen almost swooned with relief. "Go to the courtroom, Gabrilowitch," ordered His Majesty. "Follow every detail. Report everything to me, at once."

Gabrilowitch took to his heels. The courtroom was crowded. A few shepherds were trying to force

Rioting Flares At Saar Parade

RED-SOCIALIST "FRONT" GROUP ATTACKS POLICE—TIME FOR VOTE NEARS

SAARBRUCKEN, The Saar, Nov. 26 (UP)—The beginning of what may result in serious pre-plebiscite rioting occurred in this capital last night. Shock police had to be called by members in a procession of the socialists and communists "common front."

The incident increased tension in the German front organization, leaders alleging the communists were maneuvering to create an incident which would lead to intervention of French troops.

The people of the Saar are to vote on Jan. 13, deciding whether to return to Germany, become part of France or remain as at present under control of the League of Nations.

Communists said they recognize the fact members of the German front do not desire "incidents," being confident if the plebiscite is held normally the Saar will return to the reich.

Leaders in the German front charged positively that the communists were smuggling arms across the frontier from France and were now ready with machine guns and bombs to start trouble and render armed intervention by France inevitable.

A spokesman declared the organization had definite proof of this arms smuggling and insisted the Germans desire quiet and normal voting rather than "putsch" or any kind of violence.

Meanwhile, it was reliably reported here that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler had made all arrangements for a triumphant entry into the Saar when the Jan. 13 plebiscite is over—if the people vote in favor of rejoining the reich.

The United Press learned exclusively that contracts already have been in progress between Berlin and the Saar nazi headquarters since Hitler made his famous speech to Saarlanders near the Franco-German frontier some months ago.

He then declared that "the next time I address you it will be on your own territory."

Members of the German front in the Saar declared emphatically that Hitler will arrive at the Saar-Bruck aviation field, outside the city, on Jan. 14, the day after the Sunday vote.

Nazi sympathizers here are making plans for an almost delirious reception to Hitler if he comes.

Forty-Hour Week Favored By NRA

LABOR TO ENCOUNTER STRONG OPPOSITION TO DRIVE FOR GREATER REDUCTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Recommendations for a uniform 40 hour work week—10 hours more than organized labor demands—were being drafted today by NRA supervisors of some 400 basic and supplemental manufacturing codes.

This anti-30-hour work ammunition first will go to the recovery board for consideration. But informed sources named its eventual destination as the White House where it will be available to President Roosevelt for dealing with congressional work week moves.

Not alone were the manufacturing industries being canvassed, but every blue eagle code was being dissected, at the recovery board's orders, for a comprehensive summary of labor's wages and hours.

Those in charge of at least one large group of manufacturing codes were understood to feel a 36-hour work week would be desirable as an unemployment aid. But against this they weighed the disruption it would cause to present industrial operating methods, which are founded chiefly on eight-hour shifts.

Administrators of 140 light or fabricating manufacturing codes joined with the heavy group for a 40-hour week maximum with an eight-hour day and six-day week.

The apparent view of all concerned was that the blanket 39-hour week wanted by the American Federation of Labor was impossible of achievement without pushing prices so high consumption would be crippled.

NRA's present judgment is that locating production and business volume is the big chance now open for creating more jobs. Opportunities of lifting unemployment by cutting the work week are regarded as extremely limited.

MID-WEEK GAMES OF BASKETBALL VIOLATE RULING

FLOYD McMURRAY ISSUES WARNING TO INDIANA HIGH SCHOOLS

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26.—The increasing number of mid-week night games of basketball in Indiana high schools over the state was a matter of concern of Floyd I. McMurray, state superintendent of schools, here today.

The state board of education long ago turned "thumbs down" upon basketball games other than on Friday and Saturday nights on the grounds that they interfered with good school work.

"This old ruling still stands today," McMurray said in issuing a warning that the mid-week games must be discontinued.

"As long as the schools play fair with us and respect the rule there will be no interference, but we will not stand for wholesale playing of mid-week basketball games," McMurray said.

McMurray is a former president of the Indiana High School Athletic Association.

TIGER STAR CHOSEN ON ALL-STATE SQUAD

Bob Fribley, left halfback on the DePauw football squad, was honored by Blaine Patton, sports editor of the Indianapolis Star, being the only player among the secondary colleges of Indiana, selected on the Star's all-state team for the 1934 season.

Fribley was also the leading grid-iron scorer in the state this year. Standing six feet two inches tall, and weighing 200 pounds, "Frib" was placed on Patton's mythical all-star selection. Fribley was an outstanding performer on the Tiger team for three years, reaching his peak this fall.

The players honored by the Star will receive appropriate souvenirs. Patton's all-state is as follows: Vairo, Notre Dame, Antoinette, Indiana, ends; Heldt, Purdue, Schilawski, Indiana, tackles; Schilalli, Notre Dame, Sprauer, Indiana, guards; Robinson, Notre Dame, center; Carter and Purvis, Purdue, Melinkovich, Notre Dame, and Fribley, DePauw, backfield.

12 MICROSCOPES, VALUED AT $600, TAKEN AT WABASH

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Nov. 26.—Local police officers are investigating the mysterious disappearance of 12 microscopes, valued at nearly $600, from the botany laboratory in old South hall on the Wabash college campus.

Prof. A. R. Bechtel, head of the Wabash botany department, reported the theft of the microscopes to police Sunday afternoon after an assistant in the laboratory, Charles E. Williamson, sophomore, of Dana, had discovered they were missing Sunday morning.

It was believed that the 'scopes were taken from the case in which they were kept by someone between Saturday evening and Sunday morning. Professor Bechtel said he had been working in the laboratory Saturday afternoon and the case seemed undisturbed at that time. The microscopes had not been in use since last Tuesday, he said, but due to the fact that either he or his assistants had been working around the cabinet housing the microscopes daily and had failed to notice that it was otherwise than securely locked, the professor was convinced the instruments were not taken until Saturday night.

URGE STABLE CURRENCY, WAR DEBT SETTLEMENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—"There is nothing to the belief that the price level can be raised by increasing the official price of gold."

In this statement the commission of inquiry into national policy today challenged one of the fundamentals of President Roosevelt's recovery program.

The report was made public by the commission's chairman, President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago. It pointed out that the government may enlarge purchasing power, however, through maintaining for a time a large federal deficit.

Based on a year's study of world conditions by non-political groups and interviews in all lines of business and industry, the report recommended a six-point program designed to remove world trade barriers and promote business recovery. The proposals are:

1. Adoption of political measures such as immediate war debt settlement, to relieve distrust and tension throughout the world.

2. Removal of tariffs where no unemployment would result, and lowering of other tariffs subject to proper safeguards.

3. Announcement by President Roosevelt that he does not intend to exercise his powers to change the gold content of the dollar.

4. Granting by congress of wider powers to the tariff commission.

5. Freedom of government restrictions on foreign long-term private loans.

6. Abandonment at the earliest possible time of all measures tending to restrict agricultural exports.

To relieve world tension and distrust, the United States should co-operate in the disarmament conference and with the League of Nations as far as possible, continue its present South American policy, withdraw immediately from the Philippines, place Oriental immigration on a non-discriminatory basis, repeal the Johnson act forbidding loans to countries in default and promote immediate settlement of war debts.

Turning to agricultural policies, the report advocated continuation of subsidies such as those provided under the present domestic allotment program, discontinuance of all differentiate between domestic and world prices and abandonment of all other measures tending to restrict exports.

"The commission does not advocate anything like free trade," its announcement said, but insists that it is to the interest of the United States as well as to that of the rest of the world to lower the barriers to international trade sufficiently to permit the balancing of international accounts.

"Not only should we reduce our own tariff barriers, but we should do what we can to remove other restrictions now blocking the channels of international trade, such as quotas, exchange controls, blocked exchanges, import monopolies, linking purchase regulations, milling quotas, and a host of other direct and indirect, open and concealed obstacles."

The commission was appointed with approval of Mr. Roosevelt by the social science research council, a national organization representing seven national societies. The work was financed by the Rockefeller Foundation.

BRANDS TVA ILLEGAL; UTILITIES WILL FIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Thomas M. McCarter, president of the Edison Electric institute, last night announced legal findings of the opinion the Tennessee Valley Authority was unconstitutional and intimated a forthcoming supreme court test by utilities companies of the government's vast hydro-electric project in the south.

"I hope to have an early opportunity to lay this whole matter before the president of the United States," McCarter said.

In a statement issued through the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, of which he is head, McCarter said he had retained Newton D. Baker of Cleveland and James M. Beck, former representative from Pennsylvania, to study the legality of legislation affecting the electric industry.

Their opinions, rendered jointly, hold that legislation relating to the Tennessee Valley project plan and the government's plan of action in its development "is palpably unconstitutional."

The joint legal opinion, McCarter said, was presented to the trustees of the Edison Electric institute last month, with resultant adoption of resolutions holding to the opinion that the "public interest requires early adjudication by the courts government competition with private capital in public utility enterprise and authorization of the executive committee to 'take any necessary steps.'"
